How the 2019 elections may affect immigration to Israel

by Joshua Pex - Apr 3, 2019
in Kahila News Israel.
<http://tinyurl.com/y5ldgu5n>

Israel is set to have elections on April 9. This is right around the corner, and so we thought to address a few things that can change in Israeli immigration policy as governmental leadership changes. Israeli immigration issues fall under the purview of the Ministry of Interior (Misrad Hapnim) thus the identity of the Minister and the supervising clerks who the Minister appoints is quite important.

The Minister of Interior can influence Israeli immigration policy even without changing any laws, as he holds authority to issue administrative regulations for the conduct of the immigration officers. These regulations and the clerks handling of immigration cases is what make processes harder or easier, granting or withholding status as they see fit.

Several areas of potential change in Israeli immigration policy

What are the various areas we can expect to see change in immigration policy, if and when, a new Minister of Interior is appointed?

Immigration and Aliyah for non-Jews

Immigration policies for non-Jews can be made easier, particularly for those who are not part of the mainstream orthodox community or those who marry an Israeli partner, and need a marriage visa, seek to follow the common law marriage process, or marry a permanent resident.

The concept of “Who is a Jew” eligible to make Aliyah according to the law of return, has, so far, maintained the answer from the Rabbinat. Supreme Court rulings of Israel's High Court of Justice have generally excluded messianic Jews and other streams of Judaism from receiving Israeli citizenship. The change of the Minister of Interior probably won't change the law itself, or the court precedents, but may change the way the Ministry clerks implement them.

Refugees and asylum seekers

Status of asylum seekers in Israel, especially the approximately 40,000 mostly Eritreans might change under a new Minister of Interior. The process for refugees to obtain status in Israel at the moment is extremely long and very few ever successfully complete the process. At the moment, the Ministry of Interior doesn't process the request of many refugees for status, granting them general protection from deportation, but without official work visas.

Refusals of entry to Israel

Numbers of visitors refused entry to Israel are extremely high in the last few years. Almost 20,000 visitors have been denied entry to Israel at the Ben Gurion airport and other border crossings during 2018. Under the current policy, those who engage in political dissent with state policy toward minorities or Palestinians can be refused entry, particularly those suspected of supporting BDS activities. Also those suspected of missionary activity to Israel are often refused entry to the country, which has prevented a number of individuals and clergy from visiting. This policy could change under a different Minister of Interior.

Visas for international organizations

Workers and volunteers of foreign religious and humanitarian organizations who wish to conduct activities in Israel are sometimes refused visas, even if they argue that they are not involved in missionary activity in the country. A more lenient Minister of Interior may allow more visas for organizations like these.

These are just a few issues in which the Minister of Interior can influence Israeli immigration policy, and like you, we are waiting to see what will happen on the elections and who will be appointed as the next Minister of Interior of Israel.

A CLASSIC CLASS LESSON ON CLIMATE

*By Tim Blair, The Daily Telegraph
March 23, 2019 <https://alor.org/>*

Attention, students. Because so many of you missed Friday's classes, what with your little climate party and all, today I'm assigning extra work. Let's begin with mathematics. 558,400,000 is a really big number. Can anyone here tell me what it might represent? No? Well, that's the amount in tonnes of carbon dioxide that Australia emitted last year.

I'll just pause here for a minute until Samantha stops crying. By the way, Samantha, your sign at the climate rally needed a possessive apostrophe and "planet" was spelled incorrectly, so I'm putting you back in remedial English again.

Where were we? Oh, yes. 558,400,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide. Let's see how we can reduce that number. Ban coal mining? That'll knock off a big chunk. Ban petrol-powered vehicles? Good call. That's another slab of emissions gone. Does the class believe we should ban all mining? You do. Interesting, nickel or cadmium. Good luck getting to school in electric cars without those. And there'll be no more steel wind turbines once the iron ore mines are closed. It's just the price we'll have to pay, I suppose.

Even with all those bans, however, Australia will still be churning out carbon dioxide by the magical solar-powered truckload. Cuts need to go much further. More people means more human activity which means more carbon dioxide, so let's permanently ban immigration. Is the class agreed? Hmmm. You're not quite so enthusiastic about that one. Come on, students. Sacrifices must be made.

Speaking of which, how many of you have grandparents? Not any more you don't. And Samantha is crying again. Can someone please take her to the school safe space and let her “process some emotions”, or whatever the hell it is you kids do in there? Thank you.

Sing along with Kim Carnes: “All the world knows of her charms/She's got/Stop Adani arms” Who agrees we need to simplify our lives in order to reduce emissions? Returning to earlier times, when emissions were much lower, might help save our earth. So goodbye to air travel, the internet and your cell phones. People got by without them in the past and they'll survive without them in our sustainable future.

Still, those emissions will be way too high. Just for fun, let's ban Australia and see what happens. All factories, houses, streets, farms – gone. All people gone. Every atom of human presence on this land mass, completely erased. At that point we'll have finally cut our emissions to nothing. We've subtracted an annual 558,400,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide from the atmosphere. Congratulations, children. By eliminating Australia, you've just reduced the world's yearly generation of carbon dioxide from 37,100,000,000 tonnes to just ... 36,541,600,000 tonnes. Still, every tiny reduction helps, right?

Maybe not. Let's have a quick geography lesson. Tyler, please point out China on this map. No; that's Luxembourg. China is a bit bigger. Try over here. There you go. Here's the thing about China. How long will it take for China to produce Australia? One year? Two years? Five years? Not quite.

Start the carbon dioxide clock on China right now, and that one enormous nation will have matched our annual output by April 5.

China adds a whole Australia to the global emissions total every twenty days. For that matter, China will have added another 1,190,953 tonnes by the end of this one-hour class. Even a tiny increase in China's output puts Australia in the shade. Various experts last year estimated that China was on course for a five per cent carbon dioxide boost. This would mean an extra 521,637,550 tonnes – or basically what Australia generates. Our total is the same as China's gentle upswing. So maybe your protest was in the wrong country.

Here's another assignment: write letters to the Chinese government demanding it stops dragging people out of poverty.

Make sure you include your full name and address, because the Chinese government is kind of big on keeping records. Send a photograph of yourself standing in front of your parents' house.

You might repeat this process in India. In fact, rather than going to Europe for your next big family holiday, prevail upon your parents to visit India instead.

The tiny village of Salaidih would be the perfect place to tell slum-dwelling residents they shouldn't have electricity. They'll probably thank you for it. Or they should, if they aren't stupid climate deniers.

Indian paupers must avoid making the same tragic affluence. Can you imagine how terrible it would be for the earth if all of India's one billion-plus population owned cars and air-conditioners? It really doesn't bear thinking about.

One further assignment: tonight, locate a clean, green alternative source for $66 billion in exports. That's how much was raised last year by the Australian coal industry. Working it out won't be too much of a challenge, I'm sure. After all, you know science and stuff.

About half of your signs on Friday claimed you know more about all these things than does the Prime Minister. Show him how advanced your brains are by devising a brand-new multi-billion export bonanza.

Hey, look who's back! Feeling better, Samantha? That's nice. Feelings are the most important thing of all. ***

YESHUA REMEMBRANCE SERVICE

Leader: <sup>31</sup> "Here, the days are coming," says Y'HoVaH, "when I will make a new Covenant with the house of Isra'el and with the house of Y'hudah. <sup>32</sup> It will not be like the covenant I made with their fathers on the day I took them by their hand and brought them out of the land of Egypt; because they, for their part violated My Covenant, even though I, for my part, was a husband to them," says Y'HoVaH. <sup>33</sup> "For this is the Covenant I will make with the house of Israel after those days," says Y'HoVaH, "I will put My Torah within them and write it on their hearts; I will be their Elohim, and they will be My people. (Yirem'yahu ~Jeremiah 31:31-33)

Congregation: Isa 12:2 "See! Elohim is my salvation; I am confident and unafraid; for Y'HoVaH Elohim is my strength and my song, and He has become my salvation!" Isa 12:3 Then you will joyfully draw water from the springs of salvation. Ps 3:8 Victory comes from Y'HoVaH; may Your blessing rest on Your people. Ps 46:7 Y'HoVaH Tzva'ot is with us, our fortress, the Elohim of Ya'akov.

Leader: "Baruch ata Y'HoVaH, Eloheinu Melech Ha'olam, ha motze lechem m'in ha eretz."

Divide Chullah ~platted loaf

Congregation: "Blessed are You Y'HoVaH our Elohim, King of the Universe who has brought forth bread from the earth. Y'HoVaH Tzva'ot, how happy is anyone who trusts in You! (Ps 84:12). Give victory Y'HoVaH! Let the King answer us the day we call. (Ps 20:9) I will take the cup of redemption and call upon the Name, Y'HoVaH. (Ps 116:13).

Leader: (with cup in right hand) "The cup of deliverance I raise and in the Name of Y'HoVaH, Yeshua HaMashiach, I call: Baruch atah Y'HoVaH, Eloheinu Melech, ha'olam, boray p'ri ha'gafen." (Replace cup with spices)

Congregation: Blessed are You, Y'HoVaH our Elohim, King of the universe, who creates the fruit of the vine.

Leader: Lifting spice container in right hand, says... "Baruch atah Y'HoVaH, Eloheinu Melech ha'olam, boray meenee besamim."

Congregation: Blessed are You, Y'HoVaH our Elohim, King of the universe, who creates the various spices.

Leader: As Avram gave to Malki-Tzedek according to B'reshet ~Genesis 14:18-20, let us all come, make our offering, take some Chullah; smell the spices; take your cup and return to your seats and wait, so we can partake together.

Leader: Pray in relation to what Yeshua has done in connection with the day's Torah portion. "Let us eat and drink together".

Aharonic Blessing (Hebrew & English) from Tamar & Malachi (Num 6:22-27)

Leader: Our Abba and Elohim of our fathers, we thank you for the joy and rest of this Shabbat. May the coming week bring gladness & peace, health & achievement. Like the fragrance of the besamim, we pray that the days ahead bring sweetness to our lives and the lives of our loved ones. May the peace, which we are enjoying linger till we gather for Shabbat next week. We ask this in Yeshua's name, Amein.
