Children's Health Defense has created a video of Dr. Liz Mumper's presentation titled "How Will We Know That a COVID-19 Vaccine is Safe?" This presentation is the result of a collaborative effort between Dr. Mumper and the team of doctors, scientists, and researchers affiliated with CHD.

Dr. Mumper carefully provides detailed answers to two questions often asked by the public: "What does a safe and effective vaccine look like?" and "How will we know that a COVID-19 vaccine is safe?" She reviews many of the reasons why vaccines, as they are currently produced, are not safe, and explains that every year there are tens of thousands of adverse events, many of them resulting in serious conditions or even death.

Dr. Mumper reviews the scientific community's numerous concerns about the safety of a COVID vaccine and its ingredients, providing information about each of the top COVID vaccine candidates. Lastly, she discusses the legality of mandatory vaccination in a free republic which proclaims to defend the rights of "we the people."

What Does a "Safe and Effective" Vaccine Look Like?

Hundreds of doctors and scientists have studied vaccines, their ingredients, and the physiological mechanisms affected by these ingredients, and the opposite for these criteria, are the results of their work. Vaccine injury, particularly any vaccine, are safe and effective. But are they?

1. A vaccine should be tested against a true placebo ( inert solution).
 Experimental vaccines designed to reduce the severity of a placebo. However, vaccines that cause the severity of "vaccines" and are usually not tested against an inert placebo. The placebo is not a true placebo, but a true vaccine. The placebo is not a true placebo, but a true vaccine. The placebo is not a true placebo, but a true vaccine.
2. A safe vaccine should be tested long enough to properly track adverse events including those associated with post-vaccination complications.
 Many adverse events are not included in the vaccine injury database. Many adverse events are not included in the vaccine injury database. Many adverse events are not included in the vaccine injury database.
3. Experimental safety and DNA gene technology should undergo years of testing before being used on the public.
 The vaccine is not a true vaccine. The vaccine is not a true vaccine. The vaccine is not a true vaccine.
4. Vaccines should be free of mercury, aluminum and other neurotoxic substances.

Are the Top Five Coronavirus Vaccine Candidates Safe?

Due to Operation Warp Speed, public health is under unprecedented scrutiny to deliver a COVID-19 vaccine that is safe and effective. However, for more than 30 years, our public health agencies have ignored real concerns and have failed to address the most public complaints regarding vaccine safety. With significant public outcry about the vaccine's safety, a larger discussion is warranted.

Top 5 coronavirus vaccine candidates:

- Moderna Therapeutics (in phase 3/4)
  - mRNA technology
  - Contains the protein M2 (polymerase protein), a substance shown to trigger vaccine adverse outcome responses
  - In the final phase of testing, 1000 participants in the highest and high-dose groups had adverse events
  - 10% of participants in the high-dose group had a "serious" adverse event
- Novartis & Pfizer (in phase 1/2)
  - mRNA technology
  - 10% of those aged 65 - 75 in Pfizer's trial had adverse events
  - In several phases of the highest dose vaccine was given due to "neurotoxic reactivity" by trial participants
- Astrazeneca & Oxford Centre (in phase 3/4)
  - The only vaccine approved that has been used in the general public
  - Has been used in 100,000 participants, but participants developed neurotoxic reactions
  - 10% of participants experienced fatigue symptoms (another side effect of a monkey virus, Pfizer's geneticist employed Pfizer technology)
  - 10% of participants experienced fatigue symptoms (another side effect of a monkey virus, Pfizer's geneticist employed Pfizer technology)
  - 10% of participants experienced fatigue symptoms (another side effect of a monkey virus, Pfizer's geneticist employed Pfizer technology)
- Janssen & Johnson
  - Direct splitting of human adenovirus with coronavirus spike protein
  - 10% of participants in the highest dose vaccine were given due to "neurotoxic reactivity" by trial participants
- Sanofi & GlaxoSmithKline (in phase 3/4)
  - Use of a genetically-engineered virus
  - 10% of participants in the highest dose vaccine were given due to "neurotoxic reactivity" by trial participants

Are the Top Five Coronavirus Vaccine Candidates Safe?

Dr Mumper on How to Strengthen our Immune System easily and inexpensively.

Part of transcript of Dr Elisabeth Mumper from Childrens Health defence video. Source:
<https://childrenshealthdefense.org/transcripts/how-will-we-know-that-a-covid-19-vaccine-is-safe/> or
<https://tinyurl.com/hf2z3f3s>

“So for those of you who are not physicians or immunologists basically there are two arms to the immune system. There’s the innate immune system that is like our first line of defense.

“It’s a generalized response and very sensitive to things like the foods we eat and the vitamins that we take. Adaptive immunity is the traditional target of vaccines. It essentially creates very specific immunity and it remembers the infection. It can remember the infection if you get it. Like I got measles in the 1950s and have immunity now or it can remember it from a vaccine that induces this memory. But it’s specific, so we need to think as we’re dealing with COVID not just that the vaccine that targets this one arm of the immune system is going to be the answer, we need to honor mother nature. And this very exquisite system that we have that really defies our complete understanding.

“So how do we develop immune resiliency? There are things that aren’t expensive that we can do. For example, we would recommend that you maintain an optimal vitamin D level, not just one that barely sufficient to keep you from getting rickets, but one that actually helps your immune system and your brain. Vitamin D acts to increase something called interleukin 10 which acts to regulate inflammation. It dampens down inflammation much like an aspirin, acetaminophen or ibuprofen would. But it also has an important role in consolidating memories in the hippocampus. So that what you learned today after you sleep tonight, you’ll be able to remember tomorrow. This might have some value for the COVID long haulers who are dealing with horrible brain fog.

“Another thing we would advocate is generous amounts of vitamin C. Vitamin C is an excellent antiviral. It’s also an excellent antioxidant. Humans don’t make their own vitamin C. So we need to get it in our foods or in supplements. When animals face an infection, they are able to make their vitamin C and they immediately ratchet up their production of vitamin C by a factor of about 10 or more. So we need to consider using vitamin C both to help us be ready for an infection and prevent COVID severe side effects. And also to think about high doses of vitamin C to rescue people that do get COVID.

“Zinc is very important for the sense of smell. And you may remember that one of the very unique characteristics of COVID infection is that people lose their sense of smell and therefore their sense of taste. So we would recommend that the population take zinc supplements or food sources of zinc, so that they are not deficient as they encounter COVID in their communities. There are other integrative and functional strategies for your lifestyle supplements, including selenium, Omega 3 essential fatty acids, bioflavonoids all these things are anti-inflammatory.

“Very importantly, you want to avoid pro-inflammatory foods. Sugar and processed foods are pro-inflammatory meaning that they drive inflammation. Very healthy diets like Mediterranean diets that emphasize lots of fruits and vegetables are anti-inflammatory. And fruits and vegetables and high quality proteins, and good fats are what essentially tell ourselves what to do. So let’s try to optimize those interventions.

“And then very critically, the field of psycho neuroimmunology has very clearly demonstrated for decades the vital connections between our immune system and the way that we’re feeling, the supportive relationships that we either have or lack whether or not we get to spend time in nature and whether or not we have good coping mechanisms for stress. If you are inside and stressed out and fearful and alone, your immune system by definition is not going to be functioning well. So if you wanna find out more, you can look at one of the many research compilations of non-prescription, non-vaccine options to consider to keep yourself safe.

“I worry incessantly about elderly people, our grandmothers and grandfathers who are locked down often in their rooms without visitors, without sunshine or nature. I really wonder how many deaths could we have prevented by making sure that all these people in nursing homes and assisted living had adequate sources of vitamin C and vitamin D. And how many doses of vitamin C, at a cost of 10 or 20 cents a dose could we have given them for 10 to $18 billion? Which is what we spent on vaccine development so far. And very poignantly, how many of those people died a death of despair alone without their families?”
