News from George Christensen - NationFirst

Editor, cairnsnews May 24 Source: Alison Ryan

First of all, the good news...

All is not lost. There was some good news out of the election:

- Freedom parties (e.g. One Nation, UAP, Liberal Democrats, Australian Federation Party, IMOP, Katter's Australia Party, etc) scored more than 12% of the nationwide vote, which — if voters preferenced every minor party on the ticket — would be enough to score a freedom party Senator in each State.
- Pauline Hanson — a key fighter for freedom — is likely to be re-elected to the Senate.
- A lot of left-wing Liberals have been given the boot all over the country.
- Labor's Kristina Kenneally — who continually tried to paint the freedom movement as domestic terrorists — has been removed from office. She was set to be Home Affairs Minister (and in charge of ASIO and the Australian Federal Police) and would've come after us.
- A government that not only didn't stand up against vaccine mandates but was complicit in enacting those mandates has been defeated.
- We still have good people like Senator Malcolm Roberts, Senator Gerard Rennick and Senator Alex Antic in the Federal Parliament fighting for us.

Now for the bad news...

I don't want to kid you. There was plenty of the bad news out of election night:

- The freedom parties' votes were not consistent around the nation and it is likely that voters didn't preference other freedom parties. This could mean Pauline Hanson may be the only pro-freedom Senator elected to office this election.
- Freedom fighter Craig Kelly has lost his seat.
- I also did not succeed in my bid to become a Senator.
- Labor — who have been worse than the Liberals on issues like vaccine mandates — appear to hold majority government.

- A bunch of 'Teal Independents' won office who will pursue an aggressive agenda of control based around the so-called threat of 'man-made climate change'.
- The Senate will not be controlled by freedom parties, but by the Greens who are pro-mandate and also seek an aggressive agenda of control based around 'man-made climate change'.

What does this all mean?

- What the result means is that things are going to get worse before they get better. There are imminent threats to national sovereignty and freedom on the not-too-distant horizon.
- I'm talking about threats like the World Health Organization's proposed International Health Regulation Changes, its Pandemic Treaty, the Digital Identity agenda and the World Economic Forum's Great Reset program to name but a few. ...

We always follow the votes

In order to get as early an indication as possible,

This is how we get a Prime Minister the day after an election when half the Lower House votes have been counted and none of the total of 16 per cent of postal votes have been looked at. The entire electoral system should be redesigned starting from a total physical habitation check by independent contractors giving a new and cleansed roll, optional preferential voting, no compulsory voting, install voter ID for postals and booths (which some Libs backed but not the ALP), reduce pre-polling to three days, no more how-to-vote cards at booths, place a maximum amount on all advertising by candidates and make the AFP do its job after getting complaints about electoral fraud.

To our knowledge the AFP has never investigated hundreds of prima facie cases of fraud reported after every election.

No doubt readers will add to this list but this would be a good start.

A National Supply and Demand Account i.e.

A Profit and Loss Account for the Commonwealth of Australia for the Year ended 30 June 2020

Section A – Aggregate Personal Income available for Consumption

Item	Notes	$AUD Billions
Wages and Salaries	P&L 1	798.1
Personal Dividend Income	P&L 2	37.9
Personal Interest Income (monetary received only)	P&L 3	32.7
Social Security and Insurance	P&L 4	161.4
Less Individual Income tax paid	P&L 5	-235.9
Less State and Local Government Fees and Charges and other Commonwealth taxes on individuals	P&L 6	-156.8
Proprietor's Income	P&L 7	160.8
Less Household Debt Servicing Payments	P&L 8	-67.8
Superannuation and Life Insurance receipts in cash less direct personal contributions	P&L 9	65.1
Total Aggregate Personal Income available for Consumption		795.5

Section B – Gross Consumer Production

Personal consumption component of GDP (actual)	P&L 10	1,047.5
plus Net Consumer Goods Imported (food, beverages, automotive products and other items) less exports of same = 100.4 less 65.1
	P&L 11	35.3
Gross Consumer Production available for purchase		1,082.8

Deficit of consumer purchasing power to 30 June '20 287.3

The above deficit reveals the undistributed profit of the nation. Yes, the profit of the Commonwealth of Australia for the year to June 30, 2020 was $287.3 Billion AUD. Since there were 25.69 million Australians in 2020, a National Profit Dividend of $11,183.33 for that year could/should have been freely credited to every Australian. That equates to $860 a month being both tax and debt free, to every citizen. A family of four would receive a credit of $3,441 each month, which would definitely reduce mortgage stress. At present banks monetise the nation's profit lend it to us as accumulating debt.

The Purpose and Utility of the National Profit & Loss Account

The purpose of this account is to measure the income available to the Australian people in a period (2020), against the consumer goods available in that same period. This provides the most accurate indication as to whether an increase in credit is needed to facilitate the full consumption of desirable goods and services. Further, it quantifies this need and helps to establish a credit policy which neither causes demand pull inflation nor a recession in the economy.

For this reason, it offers an important guide to policy makers in determining the optimum increase, or in extremely rare occasions decrease, in the money supply and credit made available.

No official account of this type has been done in Australia up to 2022. This being so, the statistics of the Australian Bureau of Statistics are not always constructed in a way most useful to producing this account. This often compels, necessarily, extrapolation and assumption which brings statistical approximation. No apology is made for these limitations to the account's accuracy, quite the contrary, really, as these demonstrate and evidence the need for "custom made" data suited to our purpose.

Juxtaposing the aggregate consumer goods produced and available, against the inducement paid to produce them in the form of incomes, while it measures supply in the form of goods, and effective demand which is incomes, allows the account to be properly seen as a National Profit and Loss Account constructed from the point of view of Australia's people, who, properly considered, are the nation's shareholders, all holding one share each at par value.
