Israeli Deputy FM: West Finances Palestinian Terror

Israel Today, January 26, 2016 by Aviel Schneider

Three of the latest Palestinian terrorist attacks against Israeli Jews were carried out by children aged 13, 15 and 16. All three of these children were encouraged to commit heinous crimes by programming on Palestinian Authority TV, as confirmed by the 16-year-old killer of Dafna Meir, a Jewish mother of six.

Israeli Deputy Foreign Minister Tzipi Hotovely said Western governments are ultimately responsible for this because it is they who bankroll the Palestinian Authority without demanding proper accountability.

Of course, Palestinian parents also have a role to play.

The father of the aforementioned 16-year-old killer told Israeli media that he opposed the attack, but when speaking before Palestinian cameras he praised the actions of his son.

The father of a 13-year-old Palestinian girl, Rakia Abu Ayid, who was shot and killed while trying to stab Israelis, likewise said he was proud of what his child had done. "Praise be to Allah. This was done in service to Al Aqsa Mosque and Palestine," the father told Palestinian TV. "She will now meet her siblings in paradise and Allah will have mercy!"

A similar account was given by the parents of a 15-year-old Palestinian boy who was shot and killed after stabbing and moderately wounding a pregnant Jewish woman in Judea. The boy's mother called him a "holy martyr."

Hotovely told Israel Radio on Monday that Western governments involved in the peace process need to take responsibility for their role in this tragic situation.

"The international community needs to intervene here. It is unreasonable that money given by the West to the Palestinian Authority is used to incite terrorism against Israel," she said.

Indeed, the West seems almost entirely unconcerned about what has become of the roughly $21.5 billion given to the Palestinians over the past 25 years. "Where's has all that money gone?" wondered Hotovely.

In WSJ oped, Hotovely asks: Where's all the aid to the PA going?

by Ari Soffer www.israelnationalnews.com/News/News.aspx/206987

Israeli Deputy Foreign Minister Tzipi Hotovely has taken to the pages of the Wall Street Journal, to challenge international donors over how billions in aid to the Palestinian Authority have been used to fund terrorism, instead of for the humanitarian and economic purposes they were earmarked for.

In her oped, which was published late on Sunday, Hotovely acknowledges that there is "broad agreement about the importance of extending development aid to help the Palestinians build the physical and social infrastructure that will enable the emergence of a sustainable, prosperous society."

Yet she goes on to question the strange behavior of donors, who, uniquely in the case of the Palestinians, don't seem to ask any questions or demand transparency as to how their funds are actually being used. In the ten years since the signing of the Oslo Accords in 1993 - which established the Palestinian Authority under the aegis of the PLO - $21.7 billion in economic assistance was funneled to the PA, with little to no accountability.

"Such assistance will only promote peace if it is spent to foster tolerance and coexistence," Hotovely insists. "If it is used to strengthen intransigence it does more harm than good—and the more aid that comes in, the worse the outcome. This is exactly what has been transpiring over the past few decades. Large amounts of foreign aid to the Palestinians are spent to support terrorists and deepen hostility."

The most glaring misuse of funds was the PA's generous stipends to convicted terrorists and their families, which in 2014 accounted for some 16% of all foreign donations it receives annually (roughly $75 million). Any Palestinian who is jailed for carrying out or attempting to carry out a terrorist attack can expect to receive a salary of anything from $400 and $3,500, "the latter of which is more than five times the average monthly salary of a Palestinian worker," Hotovely notes.

Compounding the problem is that since 2012 - when international aid made up one quarter of the PA's budget - it's accounts have been totally non-transparent, so there is no way at all of tracking where the money being poured into Ramallah is going.

Yet despite this, Palestinians are the largest recipients of international aid per-capita in the world, and only second in terms of total amount of aid - after Syria.

"In 2013 the Palestinians received $793 million in international aid, second only to Syria. This amounts to $176 for each Palestinian, by far the highest per capita assistance in the world. Syria, where more than 250,000 people have been killed and 6.5 million refugees displaced since 2011, received only $106 per capita," according to the deputy minister.

"A closer look at the remaining eight countries in the top 10—Sudan, South Sudan, Jordan, Lebanon, Somalia, Ethiopia, Afghanistan and the Democratic Republic of Congo—is even more alarming. CIA Factbook data show that these countries have a combined population of 284 million and an average per capita GDP of $2,376. Yet they received an average of $15.30 per capita in development assistance in 2013. The Palestinians, by comparison, with a population of 4.5 million, have a per capita GDP of $4,900.

"In other words, though the Palestinians are more than twice as wealthy on average than these eight countries, they receive more than 11 times as much foreign aid per person."

Hotovely further claimed that, paradoxically, aid ostensibly meant to alleviate the suffering of ordinary Palestinians is being used to keep hundreds of thousands stuck in permanent "refugee camps," accusing the PA of "deliberately keeping them in a state of dependence and underdevelopment for no purpose other than to stoke animosity toward Israel.

She concluded with a challenge to international donors:

"It is difficult to come away from these facts without realizing the deep connection between the huge amounts of foreign aid being spent, the bizarre international tolerance for patently unacceptable conduct by the Palestinians and the lack of progress toward peace on the ground.

"Donors to the Palestinians who support peace would do well to rethink the way they extend assistance. Money should go to economic and civic empowerment, not to perpetuate a false sense of victimhood and unconditional entitlement. It should foster values of tolerance and nonviolence, not the glorification and financing of terrorism."

Palestinian Terrorists Kill Another Jewish Woman

Israel Today, January 26, 2016 by Israel Today Staff

Two Palestinian Arab terrorists, one of them just a teenager, killed an Israeli woman and wounded another in the Jewish community of Beit Horon north of Jerusalem on Monday.

Unarmed women appear to have become the favorite target of those Palestinians taking part in what has come to be known as the "Stabbing Intifada."

The fatality in Monday's attack was named as 24-year-old Shlomit Krigman (pictured), who was attacked while shopping at the local grocery. Krigman had been a youth leader in the community.

Both terrorists were shot and killed by a security guard following a short chase. Police later found two pipe bombs at the scene, indicating that a much more severe attack had been averted.

Home of Shlomit Krigman's murderers ready to be rubble

Arab terrorists who went on stabbing rampage in Beit Horon have their houses mapped out by IDF prior to demolition.

IDF forces and Civil Administration crews mapped out the homes of the two Arab terrorists who on Monday conducted a lethal stabbing attack in Beit Horon, Samaria, in which 23-year-old Shlomit Krigman (pictured above) was brutally murdered.

In Bayt Ur al-Tahta in Samaria members of the Kedem battalion conducted the engineering mapping in preparation for demolishing the home of Ibrahim Osama Yussef Alan.

Meanwhile in Kalandia in northern Jerusalem members of the Duvdevan special ops unit mapped out the home of Hassin Mohammed Hasin Abu Gosh.

In the attack, the two terrorists stabbed Krigman, then tried to enter a store but were pushed out by the owner who used a shopping cart to block their entrance. Once they realized that they would not be able to get into the store, they ran towards another woman and stabbed her before running off.

The second victim, a 58-year-old woman with moderate stab wounds to her upper body, is still being treated at Shaare Tzedek Hospital. Doctors say that her condition is improving.

A nearby security guard shot and killed the two terrorists at the scene. Afterwards no fewer than three improvised explosives were found nearby, indicating a well-planned assault. The terrorists are believed to have thrown the bombs at shoppers, but they failed to detonate.

In additional nighttime operations on Tuesday night, security forces arrested six suspects, three of them on suspicion of involvement in terrorist activities and violent rioting that targeted Israeli civilians and security forces.

Hamas deputy leader praises media for supporting the 'intifada'

Arutz Sheva By Dalit Halevi, 25/1/2016

Hamas' deputy leader Ismail Haniyeh on Sunday praised the Palestinian Arab media for continuing to play a major role in strengthening the morale of the Palestinians during the intifada.

Speaking at an event of Hamas's Communications Department honoring journalists who won international awards in 2015, Haniyeh said that "there is an ongoing campaign without guns and without the noise of bullets, and that campaign is the siege on the Gaza Strip, and it is more dangerous than aircraft and cannons, and so the Palestinian media must show it and remind the world of the suffering of the residents of Gaza."

Haniyeh added, "The media people must protect the culture of the intifada, to keep the problem under the media microscope, follow the developments on the local, national and international arenas, and focus at this point on protecting the internal front and supporting the morale of Palestinians in both Gaza and the occupied West Bank, because the volume of the counter-media is so large and the other side works non-stop in an attempt to circumvent the achievements recorded by our people during the years of conflict and confrontation."

"We are in a sensitive stage and we need to strengthen the national fraternity, and the media must protect the Palestinian morale in light of the difficult conflicts and the psychological media war that the occupation is conducting," he claimed.

Hamas media, as well as media associated with Palestinian Authority (PA) chairman Mahmoud Abbas and his Fatah movement, have continued to incite to terrorism against Israelis.

The success of this incitement was proven once again on Sunday, when it was cleared for publication that Murad Bader Abdullah Adais, the 16-year-old Arab terrorist who last Sunday stabbed to death Dafna Meir at the entrance to her home in Otniel, was inspired by Palestinian TV.

Meanwhile, Hamas has made sure to silence journalists who are critical of the movement and its stronghold on Gaza.

Reports two weeks ago said that two journalists who were openly critical of Hamas were arrested by the group and then were beaten and tortured for nine days in prison. One of them decided upon his release that he would no longer write about politics.
