Trump and Putin see Eye To Eye on Iran Leaving Syria

Ynetnews

US official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, is cited in Bloomberg as saying that the two leaders agreed in their July discussions during a summit in Helsinki that Tehran's forces should leave the war-torn country, but Putin expressed reservations about the feasibility of forcing them to vacate the territory; disputes over the Golan Heights also said to be a major talking point.

US President Donald Trump and Russian President Vladimir Putin “agreed in principle” during their latest meeting in Helsinki last month that Iranian forces should leave Syria, according to a report in Bloomberg.

An official in the US administration who spoke on condition of anonymity divulged the information on the two leaders’ encounter, adding that Moscow had made it clear that removing Iranian forces from Syrian territory would prove a difficult task.

The White House published few details about the meeting, but according to an official familiar with the details, a significant part of the discussions were dedicated to the ongoing civil war in Syria and the functions being carried out there by Iran.

In addition, the two leaders spoke about the campaign against ISIS, disputes over the Golan Heights, and the humanitarian situation in Syria, the official said.

According to Bloomberg, the summit yielded few results when it came to extensions of arms control treaties, one of which expires in 2021.

PA leader admits efforts to torpedo Israel-Hamas truce talks

"Either we take responsibility for the West Bank and Gaza under one state or Hamas will," Mahmoud Abbas states • If excluded from cease-fire negotiations, Ramallah will spare no effort to impede any deal reached between Hamas and Israel, he warns.

Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas warned Saturday that he will not allow for two separate entities to rule Palestinian lands, effectively admitting that Ramallah was actively trying to torpedo the Egyptian-brokered cease-fire talks between Israel and Hamas.

Over the past few weeks, Egypt has been heading the indirect negotiations between Israel and the terrorist group ruling the Gaza Strip, in an attempt to prevent recent flare-ups on the Gaza border from escalating into war.

Hamas ousted Abbas' Western-backed government from the Gaza Strip in a military coup in 2007. Since then, the various efforts to reconcile the rival Palestinian factions – the latest brokered by Egypt in late 2017 – have failed.

The Palestinian Authority will not abide by any deal inked between Israel and Hamas and Ramallah will actively try to torpedo it, Abbas exclaimed. "Either we take responsibility for the West Bank and Gaza under one state, one regime, one law, and one weapon, or [Hamas] will take responsibility for it," he told the closing session of the Palestinian Central Council, the Palestine Liberation Organization's second-highest decision-making body.

But according to Abbas, "Reconciliation [with Hamas] does not mean a truce, cease-fire, or humanitarian assistance. Reconciliation means that unity should be reinstated. There is no state in Gaza and an autonomy in the West Bank, and we will not accept this. We will never accept the separation of Gaza [from the West Bank]."

He reiterated that any humanitarian aid or financial support for the coastal enclave must go through his own government, saying, "Who rehabilitated Gaza after [the Israeli military campaign in] 2014? The money was transferred to me and we rebuilt [Gaza]. We rebuilt some 90% of the houses – they [Hamas] did not rebuild even one house!"

Abbas further lambasted Israel for "violating all the agreements including Oslo, which I signed [in 1993]. We benefitted, but they started to destroy it. And they did destroy it. Therefore, Oslo will not remain if the situation remains as it is."

He reiterated that the Palestinian Authority would not maintain ties with the U.S. unless it rescinds its recognition of Jerusalem, announced in December 2017.

U.S. President Donald Trump's move and the subsequent relocation of the American Embassy in Israel from Tel

Aviv to Jerusalem prompted Abbas to declare that Ramallah no longer sees the U.S. as a trustworthy partner in the Israeli-Palestinian peace process, given Washington's bias toward the Jewish state.

Palestinian Authority officials have not met with senior White House adviser Jared Kushner or U.S. Special Representative for International Negotiations Jason Greenblatt since January. Both Kushner and Greenblatt have said they would prefer to engage with Abbas on the long-awaited White House peace plan but stressed that if he persists with his rejectionism, the White House will work to implement the plan without him.

"Hope must remain with us that the state of Palestine will inevitably come and that the Palestinian flag will be raised above Jerusalem," he said, Abbas said.

He also endorsed "popular resistance," saying that "we must not underestimate popular resistance and the land should remain aflame with popular resistance.

Abbas informed the Central Committee that his government plans to call on the U.N. General Assembly to condemn Israel's "racist and fascist" nation-state law when it reconvenes in September.

Responding to Abbas's threat, Israeli Ambassador to the U.N. Danny Danon said that "every year, ahead of the General Assembly, the Palestinians prepare some propagandist action. This is a ridiculous move."

US, Israel officials downplay Trump's warning of 'price' over Jerusalem moves

Washington says it will not impose 'unacceptable conditions' as sources in Jerusalem point to John Bolton's reassurance 'it's not an issue of quid pro quo'

US and Israeli officials on Wednesday downplayed a remark made by US President Donald Trump a day earlier in which the American leader said Israel would pay "a higher price" in peace talks with the Palestinians to compensate for Washington's decision to recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital and relocate its embassy to the city.

Seeking to calm Israeli concerns, senior US officials told Channel 10 that "the US will not impose unacceptable conditions on Israel in its peace plan."

At the same time, an Israeli official said US National Security Adviser John Bolton had clarified the American president's comments. Bolton, who was on a visit to Jerusalem, had said earlier on Wednesday the president's speech did not represent a change in the US administration's policy on peace negotiations.

"National Security Adviser Bolton clarified his (Trump's) remarks earlier today, and Israel is very pleased with the excellent visit by the national security adviser, which further strengthens the strong relations between Israel and the United States,” the Israeli official said.

Bolton had stressed that there was no “quid pro quo” involved in the US decisions regarding Jerusalem.

“I don’t think there’s any change in policy. I think the president looked at the recognition of Jerusalem as being Israel’s capital and the inevitable consequence of that is that the US embassy ought to be in the capital city of the country which its accredited as the right and natural thing to do,” the senior Trump aide said. “It’s not an issue of quid pro quo.”

On Tuesday night, Trump told a campaign rally in Charleston, West Virginia, that the Palestinians “will get something very good” in any future negotiations in return for the US having recognized Jerusalem as Israel’s capital.

“It was a good thing to have done,” Trump said, of his recognition of Jerusalem and the relocation of the US embassy to the capital, “because we took it off the table. Because every time there were peace talks, they never got past Jerusalem becoming the capital. So I said, let’s take it off the table. And you know what? In the negotiation, Israel will have to pay a higher price, because they won a very big thing.” The Palestinians “will get something very good, because it’s their turn next. Let’s see what happens.”

Life-Saving Trees Burnt by Incendiary Kites

by KKL-JNF for Jerusalem Post, August 22, 2018

In the Western Negev region hundreds of acres of security plantings carried out in this part of Israel since the 1950s have now gone up in smoke due to incessant incendiary kite and balloon attacks from Gaza. KKL-JNF teams are working around the clock to mitigate the damage to these security trees by caring for them on a daily basis.

Extensive damage has been inflicted upon thickets of trees planted around eleven communities in the Western Negev in the 1950s to provide a natural protective screen between them and the Gaza Strip. In recent years these thickets have been fortified by many more lifesaving trees planted for this purpose with the help of KKL-JNF’s Friends throughout the world.

Leader: Pray in relation to what Yeshua has done in connection with the day's Torah portion. "Let us eat and drink together".

Aharonic Blessing (Hebrew & English) from Tamar & Malachi (Num 6:22-27)

Leader: Our Abba and Elohim of our fathers, we thank you for the joy and rest of this Shabbat. May the coming week bring gladness & peace, health & achievement.
