Russia votes to define marriage in constitution as between man and woman

Worthy News, July 1, 2020

Russians voted in favor of a referendum on Wednesday for a series of constitutional amendments, one of which would define marriage as between a man and a woman.

Preliminary results tallied by CNN found that nearly 80% of Russians backed the amendments.

The referendum, ostensibly intended to restore a Russian "protection of the family," also changed Russia's constitution so that President Vladimir Putin will be able to hold power until 2036. Russian law already does not allow gay marriage.

The new amendment codifies a "defense of the institution of marriage as a union of a man and a woman; the creation of conditions for a decent upbringing of children in the family, as well as for the responsibilities of adult children to care for parents."

An official state booklet promoting the amendments frame them as recentering Russia on "traditional family values," stating, "marriage as a union of man and woman, respect for children to elders, trust and care of all generations of a family for each other."

Promotional materials for the amendment obscured the fact that Putin's presidency has effectively been extended for another two decades.

The last time Russians voted to amend their constitution was in 1993. Putin proposed the amendments in March, emphasizing marriage as a "union of a man and a woman," and new, official references to "ancestors who bequeathed to us their ideals and a belief in God."

Netanyahu ally confirms delays in West Bank annexation plan

(Worthy News), July 1, 2020

- A confidant of Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu confirmed that the premier's plan to annex parts of the West Bank would not start on Wednesday, the original target date.

The developments cast further uncertainty over whether Israel will ultimately follow through on the explosive annexation initiative, which has drawn fierce condemnations from some of Israel's closest allies.

Speaking to Army Radio, Regional Cooperation Minister Ofir Akunis confirmed that the annexation process would not begin on Wednesday, saying that officials were still working out the final details with their American counterparts. He said he expected the annexation to take place later in July.

"Coordination with the American administration is not something that can be dismissed," he said.

Netanyahu had aimed to start the process by Wednesday, saying he wanted to begin annexing West Bank territory in line with US President Donald Trump's Mideast plan. The plan, unveiled in January, envisions bringing some 30 percent of the territory under permanent Israeli control, while giving the Palestinians limited autonomy in carved-up pockets of the remaining land.

But Netanyahu's unilateral annexation project has come under stiff international criticism. The United Nations, the European Union and key Arab countries have all said Israel's annexation would violate international law and undermine the already diminished prospects of establishing a viable independent Palestinian state alongside Israel. Even close allies, like Britain, have opposed it.

Dr. Fauci says the U.S. is headed in wrong direction as Trump pledges control Washington Examiner by Cassidy Morrison, July 02.

President Trump and infectious disease expert Dr. Anthony Fauci have opposing views on the country's progress in stopping the coronavirus pandemic.

Trump told reporters Thursday during a press briefing that the coronavirus is "under control," while Sun Belt states report daily records in new case counts and the United States surpasses 2.7 million cases.

"[China and Europe are] getting under control, and we are likewise getting under control," Trump said during a Thursday press briefing.

Meanwhile, Fauci said Thursday that the U.S. is "not going in the right direction" in terms of the pandemic.

In an interview with the American Medical Association, Fauci said, "We need to realize that if we do not adhere to the guidelines as we're trying to open, and I don't mean officially, I mean the citizenry, the people that are out there, we're going to be in some serious difficulty."

Rates of new coronavirus infectious have been rising for several weeks and hit a nationwide record high Wednesday when cases surpassed 50,000 for the first time. Still, Trump insisted that the renewed outbreaks will be short-lived.

Earlier this week, Fauci warned that the pandemic will worsen if compliance with social distancing protocols doesn't improve. The number of new daily infections, he told the Senate health committee, could more than double to about 100,000 cases per day.

Fauci also said Thursday that the coronavirus is showing signs of mutating in a way that may make it easier to spread to more people.

How fast does this pandemic end if you could start feeling better in as soon as 5 hours???

Trump touted June's job growth during Thursday's press briefing, citing reports from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which found that 4.8 million jobs were added to nonfarm payrolls, bringing the U.S. unemployment rate down to 11.1%.

"Today's announcement proves that our economy is roaring back. It's coming back extremely strong," Trump told reporters Thursday. "We have some areas where we're putting out the flames of the fires, and it's working out well..."
