ALP and Greens will crucify stable Queensland power supplies with useless foreign-owned wind farms surviving only on government grants

Feb 15, by Editor, cairnsnews

Source: Cairnsnews.org from Senator Malcolm Roberts and Cairns News

When the wind doesn't blow the power doesn't flow

Mt Emerald Windfarm on the Atherton Tablelands came online in late 2018 but locals say much of the time the turbines are turned off.
Pic (Steven Nowakowski)

The relentless march toward the insane renewable targets around the country is blinding many of us to the full cost of unreliable (renewable) energy.

Increasingly we are being told how “cheap” renewable energy is becoming, how many jobs they will create and that renewables are environmentally friendly.

These are the consistent claims of Labor and Greens. The statements are wildly inaccurate, and they mislead the Australian public.

Take for example the proposed Chalumbin wind plant, 10km south of Ravenshoe in Far North Queensland. On completion this will be the largest wind plant in Australia boasting 94 wind turbines.

The original developer of the Chalumbin project, Epuron is a German group which in December sold its holding company to Korean entity Ark Energy.

Commenting on the transaction, Yun B. Choi, Chairman of Ark Energy and Vice Chairman of Korea Zinc said this friendly acquisition allows us to accelerate Korea Zinc Group's energy transition and contributes to Ark Energy's long-term ambition to develop a new green energy export corridor from Australia to South Korea.

Installation requires 31,500ha (77,805 acres) of virgin land of which 1,250ha will be cleared. Individual blades are the length of a football field and the turbine height is 160m and infrastructure includes 146km of roads up to 70m wide.

Close to the Koombooloomba and Tully Falls National Parks and the Tully Falls hydro power plant, this wind plant will have a huge negative impact on the local ecology, wildlife and farming.

On one hand the Greens want to demolish sustainable hardwood industries because of the impact on the environment, yet find it acceptable to demolish primary remnant vegetation for a wind plant.

The cost of producing unreliable (renewable) energies are never fully transparent. The inconvenient truth is that additional infrastructure costs, for example transmission lines, are left out of the full cost. The other major factor on which the Greens remain silent is the size of government subsidies.

Each of the 94 wind turbines in the Chalumbin wind plant receives a $500,000 / year subsidy; that is your taxpayer money used to produce this "cheap power". And with a maximum of just 30 ongoing jobs, up to 10 that will be highly specialised, the prospect of significant local employment looks bleak, while higher electricity costs will kill agricultural and manufacturing jobs.

Another recently constructed wind farm covering 6000 acres adorns the Atherton Tablelands landscape at Walkamin just 50 klms north of Chalumbin. It came on line two years ago much to the objection of farmers and the general public.

Cairnsnews is reliably informed by contributors who travel past the 53

Mount Emerald monoliths on a daily basis that 80 per cent of the time these generators are turned off. Their blades are locked because the grid is over-supplied.

Yet under the terms of their contract to the Queensland Government, the owners, Ratch Australia get paid a guaranteed amount per kilowatt regardless if the turbines are turning or not.

RATCH-Australia is owned by the Singaporean-based RH International (Singapore) Corporation Pte Limited of which the Thailand-based Ratchaburi Electricity Generating Holding Public Company Limited is the ultimate parent. Cairnsnews is unaware of any wind farms which are Australian owned.

"Cheap" renewables are just a cheap lie.

Leader: Our Abba and Elohim of our fathers, we thank you for the joy and rest of this Shabbat. May the coming week bring gladness & peace, health & achievement. May the peace, which we are enjoying linger till we gather for Shabbat next week. We ask this in Yeshua's name, Amein.
